The Autolift bath hoist is available in both battery powered or manual configurations; the battery version allows control through a two-button handset, and has a removable battery for charging outside the bathroom. The manual column is carer operated and is very simple and easy to manage.

What makes the Autolift unique is the flexibility of installation, even in situations where other hoists aren't able to work. Some of the successful installations are shown above, and include corner baths, low level baths, and even situations where there is underfloor heating in place. With a wide selection of arm and seat designs, you can cater to just about any bathroom design. Customisations can be made where there are maybe unusual dimensions or designs to be worked with.

For easy transfer between bedroom and bathroom, the Autolift is offered with the optional chassis, which accepts the seat; the carer lowers the seat whilst attaching the chassis, the wheels the user away from the bath through to the bedroom.

Other accessories include the commode aperture seat for easy access and personal hygiene. An extending leg rest can be supplied with the commode chair to assist users who require leg support whilst transferring.
